INTRODUCTION

Under the State Quarry Rules and the Mineral Development Act 1994, any individual who is in charge of using explosives in quarrying and mining is required by The Minerals and Geoscience Department Malaysia to obtain shotfirer certificate. In order to obtain the certificate an individual must pass the theory examination as well as the practical examination which are conducted by the Department.

Institute of Quarrying Malaysia with the cooperation from Minerals And Geoscience Department Malaysia has been conducting the shotfirer courses since 1993. More than 1,000 quarrying and mining personnel including from overseas had benefited from the course. After more than 20 years of training, the course curriculum and lecture notes have been updated to meet the current requirements for safe blasting practices. Tips on how to achieve good blast and improve the fragmentation are also discussed in the lectures. Overall the lectures cover much more than the syllabus for the shotfirer theory examination. Comprehensive notes and tutorials are given to prepare candidates to sit for the shotfirer theory examination.

BENEFITS

1. Shotfiring or blasting is an essential part of quarrying and mining which requires special knowledge and skill to achieve lower production cost while maintaining safety and health as well as minimising environmental impacts.
2. Employers are eager to engage someone who has undergone training on safe handling of explosives and good knowledge on blasting.
3. Attending the course will enable an individual to have better understanding on explosives, initiation system, safe handling, shotfiring procedures, minimising environmental impacts, blast sequence and misfire.
4. Lectures will be given by experienced speakers who have vast experience in blasting and teaching.
5. This course is a module of the Quarry Manager's Certificate (QMC).
